

Pastor Chris has the platforms, the people and the message - Pastor Obi Chiemeka

Meeting and Knowing Pastor Chris

I think the way I think, I am doing what I am doing right now, I am where I am in life and very fulfilled because of the encounter I had with Pastor Chris in November 1991 at a "More than Music" event that the Current Chief Operating Officer, Loveworld Incorporated, the esteemed Pastor Ifeoma Chiemeka invited me to.

His Global Impact

The impact has been so mighty almost difficult to quantify because of the depth of what was planned by Satan and the deep state during the Covid-19 debacle but was averted because of one lone voice with authority that kept speaking and was heard in every nation and tribe, which triggered the right response and a fight to disallow wicked men and their evil agenda to proceed any further.

Blessing to The World

Pastor Chris has the platforms, he has the people, he has the message, he has the mandate, he has the materials, he has the anointing and he has the money to get the message of salvation and healing to every nation of the world and he is doing just that, what blessing could be better than a nation and the world at large receiving such.

A Man of Great Conviction

Pastor Chris is unrelenting, unwavering, undaunted because he is a man after God's heart just like David and will stop at nothing to fulfil all that is in God's heart to do. (Acts 13:22)

the closest attempts the works of men have had in recent times to take over the world. Pastor from the onset declared COVID-19 a Debacle and by the Spirit of the Lord he led us in Global Prayers for the nations. The Man of God gave us the word that brought peace and cleared all doubts, and led us in triumphant victory procession.

We have seen changes everywhere. There was no country or authority that did not conform to God's agenda as a result of the prayer and prophetic declarations of our Man of God.

He became a voice from God and source of truth for millions and billions of people, and this impact can't be underestimated.

A Gift to The World

One of the many blessings we have found in our Man of God, is that he has been preparing the world for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Firstly, Pastor has revealed to us God's calendar! Oh, what a blessing! In 2020, Pastor showed us the number of years that were given to the church and the remaining timeline before the Rapture (3-6-10 years as of 2020).

Secondly, Pastor has explained to us the life we ought to live as Saints. All the realities of the Millennium reign are available to the Church now! In this dispensation of the church, we ought to live it out to the full!

Thirdly, in the call of God upon

Pastors life is the call to reach and prepare 7 Billion people for the Rapture of the Church.

Strength of Character

Pastor's believe and trust in the Word of God. The Word of God is the only source of truth and Pastor has always been committed to demonstrating the efficacy and integrity of God's Word. Pastor proved to us that the Word of God is ever-reliable and dependable! Even in the midst of the darkest circumstances, Pastor was not shaken. He spoke the truth of God's Word to the whole world.

Pastor Chris is undeniably a gift to the world - Pastor Dupe Isesele

My encounter with the Man of God

It has been nothing short of being amazing from the beginning till now. I've known Pastor for over three decades, from my years in school to this day. Pastor is not just my pastor, he is more than that. Even though I have a biological father, Pastor is my father because of his fatherly role in my life. He is so interested in my continuous growth and expansion. As a matter of fact, I don't think you would have known me enough to ask me questions if it weren't for Pastor. Pastor has taught and still teaches me so much about life, business and of course ministry. His impact in my life is one that I'll always be excited to talk about whenever I have the opportunity to. I am grateful to God for his influence.

Pastor Chris is a Blessing to the nations

Pastor is indeed a gift to this generation. If not for anything else, I would like to thank Pastor for standing for the church during the he Covid-19 debacle. It was indeed a time of learning, unlearning and relearning for us as Christians. Who would have thought that the devil had so much hidden in the Covid-19. But God through our Man of God exposed their wicked works and equipped us more. Now, we know and understand the times like the children of Issachar. So much to say but, Pastor has really impacted the world, and our generation is blessed to have him.

The Impact of My Man of God Pastor Chris' Ministry in my life

One thing is certain, if I am the only person on earth that has benefitted from the gift called Pastor, I would still have so much to say. Pastor has undeniably been and is still a blessing to the world. His teachings have continually emphasized our Christ life and our rights as Christians. This is as it is based on the word of God, in other words, Jesus Christ yesterday, today and forever. His healing ministry and several other platforms under his ministry, has given hope to many that have been positively impacted in one way or the other. One can see that there is a lot the world is benefitting, from the life and ministry of this great man of God. It is beyond mere words. I thank God for his unending impact.

His Motivation

Like the Bible said, "Not by Power or might but my Spirit saith the Lord of host". Pastor is a man of the Spirit. He believes in the principle of prayers and the power of God's word. Which is why the Holy Spirit has helped him carry out the mandate that was given to him.

His Mandate to Prepare 7billion Souls for Rapture

This mandate which is - taking God's divine presence to the people and nations of the world, demonstrating the character of the Spirit, sums up all his plans and desire to see the world embrace the truth of the gospel, based on the word of God, not on man's teachings or on circumstances. It explains why he has remained steadfast, focused on this mandate of reaching the whole world of more than 7 billion people with the gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

It's been a great journey of ever increasing greatness and glory with the man of God, Reverend Chris Oyakhilome. We thank God for his life and Ministry.

As The Redesigned Naira Notes Are Unveiled...

| Marcel Okeke |

JUST before the commencement of the Federal Executive Council (FEC) meeting on Wednesday, November 23, 2022, President Muhammadu Buhari unveiled (the redesigned) new Naira bank notes in the denominations of 200, 500 and 1000 Naira. This symbolic but significant event pointedly underscored the Central Bank of Nigeria's seriousness and commitment to expeditiously and effectively implementing the Naira redesigning and reissuance policy it announced on October 26, 2022—an initiative that literally touched the raw nerves of not a few stakeholders and operators in the Nigerian economy. By this singular act of unveiling the redesigned Naira notes about three weeks ahead of schedule, the apex bank has effectively crossed the Rubicon and proved to every doubting Thomas that it meant business. The redesigned Naira notes were originally scheduled to be unveiled and made available to the public on Thursday December 15, 2022.

Since the announcement of the Naira redesigning and reissuance initiative on Wednesday, October 26, 2022, the policy has drawn the ire of not a few economic agents—even from unexpected quarters—but it has also attracted the approval and commendation of many stakeholders. The first thunderbolt came from no less a person than the Honourable Minister of Finance, Budget and National Planning, Mrs. Zainab Ahmed, who completely disowned the policy. Less than forty-eight hours after a special press conference at which the CBN Governor, Mr. Godwin Emefiele, announced the Naira redesigning policy, the Honourable Minister not only literally shredded the initiative but warned of real and imaginary dire consequences it would unleash on the economy.

But for the timely intervention of President Buhari, as it were, to co-own the CBN effort and restate his approval of the same, the Honourable Minister's tirade had totally exposed the currency initiative to public disdain and opprobrium. Rightly, the CBN had gotten the consent and approval of Mr. President before going public with the policy. The apex bank has full backing of its enabling law as the sole issuer and manager of the country's currency. The CBN Act 2007 provides all the enablement: Section 19 says: The currency notes and coins issued by the Bank shall be (a) in such denominations of the Naira or fractions thereof as shall be approved by the President on the recommendation of the Board; and (b) of such forms and designs and bear such devices as shall be approved by the President on the recommendation of the Board. That is, recommendations of the Board of the Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN) and the approval of the President is all that is required for the apex bank to embark on any currency management initiative it deems appropriate.

However in the face of the confusion unleashed by the Minister's stance and wilful distortions of the currency policy, many fraudsters, currency counterfeiters, money launderers and hoarders deployed all manner of tricks to 'beat' the objectives of the CBN policy. Many hoarders of huge volumes of Naira notes were noticed running helter-skelter, rushing to every available Bureau de Change (BDC) to mop up every available dollar (and other hard currencies)—and this showed up as 'freefall' of the Naira against the dollar and other currencies in the ('black' market) foreign exchange market. In the official window of the foreign exchange market however, the Naira experienced minimal depreciation against the dollar and other currencies. Incidentally, a timely search on the operations of some of the BDCs conducted by the operatives of the Economic and Financial Crimes Commission (EFCC) fully exposed the nefarious activities of the BDCs and their ignoble collusion with some economic saboteurs. This EFCC's timely onslaught has since deflated the forex racketeers and completely stymied the rate of Naira depreciation in all 'windows' of the foreign exchange market.

At a point, when the economic saboteurs and their cohorts appeared to be succeeding in 'submerging' the Naira redesigning policy, the support and 'approval' of the members of the upper legislative house (the Senate) of the Federal Republic of Nigeria provided the needed impetus and fillip to the implementation of the currency initiative. The Senate, after detailed engagement with the leadership of the apex bank, gave their full support and pledged to back up the policy with every necessary legislative pinning. It (the Senate) however requested that the January 31, 2023 deadline for the closure of the new currency exercise be extended to the close of first quarter 2023—a plea the CBN has foreclosed through the guidelines and timelines it had issued to the deposit money banks (DMBs) in respect of the new Naira project. And the DMBs have remained upbeat ever since.

Indeed, since the beginning of November 2022, practically all the DMBs have adjusted their work schedules—to accommodate all manner of depositors (new and existing ones) who could come at any time of the day/week. A typical notice to this effect, by the DMBs goes thus: "Temporary extension of banking hours: Following the CBN's announcement on the currency redesign exercise, please note that we have reviewed our working hours: Weekdays—Monday to Friday: All branches will open by 8am and close by 6pm; Saturdays—Branches will open by 10am and close by 4pm."

Just before the unveiling of the redesigned Naira notes, part of the 'products' being spewed out of the rumour mill had been that President Muhammadu Buhari was bent on having his image on one of the new Naira bills. This 'fake news' was so widespread that its purveyors argued that having Mr. President's image on a higher value Naira note was even the sole reason for the CBN's move ab initio. However, at a forum in Abuja, President Buhari reportedly said: "Please ignore any rumour that says my face will be on one of the new bills. Yes, it was discussed (in my kitchen) but we did not agree on which picture, so we left at that."

While unveiling the redesigned Naira notes, President Buhari underscored the importance of the new Naira policy, saying it was aimed at addressing issues of illicit financial flows, corruption, improvement of the nation's economy as well as ensuring advancement in the value of the Naira. Noting that the currency redesign will also boost the CBN's monetary policy initiatives, Mr. President also stated that the first set of currency which was printed locally by the Nigeria Printing and Minting Company (The Mint) will fundamentally prevent counterfeiting of the Naira notes. On his own part, the CBN Governor, Mr. Emefiele, maintained that going forward, there would be heavy restrictions on the volume of cash that people can withdraw over the counter, as the apex bank works with the EFCC to monitor the purpose for any heavy transaction. He asserted that the redesigned currency notes "can never" be counterfeited, adding that to forestall such occurrences, the CBN would "redesign the notes after every five to eight years."

In all, and having come this far with the new policy, the apex bank deserves all the kudos and encouragement to see the initiative to its logical conclusion. Although it attracted mixed reactions at the outset, the new Naira policy, on dispassionate consideration, has a multiplicity of noble intentions and objectives. And as the CBN boss has assured, the policy is not targeted at any person or group in the society. We hope for the best, as a polity!

Vaccine deaths: COVID Vaccines Were Shot in the Dark and Mortality Statistics Prove It

Pfizer officials bragged about moving vaccine science forward at a speed that made it impossible to follow proper scientific protocols — then Pfizer and other COVID-19 vaccine makers hid side effects by eliminating the control groups long before the studies were over. By Dr. Joseph Mercola

Story at-a-glance:

In recent months, two Pfizer officials have bragged about moving vaccine science forward at a speed that disallows proper scientific protocols from being followed, and the release of reformulated mRNA COVID-19 boosters without testing is now the norm.

In November, the recently retired head of vaccine R&D at Pfizer, Kathrin Jansen, said “we flew the aeroplane while we were still building it. We couldn't wait for data, we had to do so much at risk.” Pfizer compressed its vaccine development timeline from 10 years to a mere nine months by simultaneously developing and testing the product in human trials.

Pfizer and other COVID-19 jab makers hid side effects by eliminating the control groups long before the studies were over.

Vaccine makers are readying to release other mRNA shots, many of which are being fast-tracked and predicted to receive authorization in months rather than years. Moderna is working on a three-in-one shot for COVID-19, flu and RSV (respiratory syncytial virus), and they seem to expect releasing it before clinical trials are finished.

Pfizer quoted and relied on data from Israel when it sought approval from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, and as it turns out, the Israeli government hid information about side effects. It didn't even implement its surveillance system until a year after the shots rolled out, and when the data were analyzed, researchers concluded there were causative links between certain side effects and the jabs.

In the video below, Del Bigtree with The Highwire reviews how the precautionary principle and long-standing safety guidelines in medicine have been eliminated with the COVID-19 shots, and how data showing harms are being ignored, suppressed and manipulated to hide the truth.

In recent months, no less than two Pfizer officials have bragged about moving vaccine science forward at a speed that virtually guarantees that proper scientific protocols will be abandoned.

In early October, during a COVID-19 hearing in the European Parliament, Dutch member Rob Roos questioned Pfizer's president of international developed markets, Janine Small, about whether Pfizer had in fact tested and confirmed that their mRNA jab would prevent transmission prior to its rollout.

Small admitted that Pfizer never tested whether their jab would prevent transmission because they had to “move at the speed of science to understand what is happening in the market ... and we had to do everything at risk.”

Then, in November, recently retired head of vaccine R&D at Pfizer, Kathrin Jansen, told an interviewer that “we flew the aeroplane while we were still building it.”

As noted in that interview, Pfizer compressed its vaccine development timeline from 10 years to a mere nine months. Well, you cannot do that unless you cut certain corners and develop and test the product more or less simultaneously.

In this case, human trials began even though the preliminary testing was extremely minimal. That's what she's talking about when she says they built the plane in midair.

They did everything at your risk

"We got creative — we couldn't wait for data, we had to do so much 'at risk,'" Jansen said.

There are those words again — doing everything "at risk."

In other words, the risks were not part of the equation, and let's be clear, the risk they're referring to is the risk a person takes when they take the shot.

Pfizer's primary focus was to create a shot that minimized the symptoms of infection, but aside from that, there was no time to assess side effects or long-term drawbacks of the technology, such as antibody-dependent enhancement, myocarditis or spontaneous abortions.

This is probably why Pfizer and the other COVID-19 jab makers all decided to eliminate the control groups long before the studies were even over. This way, side effects could be hidden, and we see the effects of that decision now.

Myocarditis, blood clots, lethal heart attacks, strokes, cancer and sudden death are all skyrocketing, but since there's no official control group to compare with, those trends are written off as either normal or coincidental.

You've probably seen that heart attacks are now blamed on everything from hot weather and cold showers to soil microbes in your garden, climate change and loud noises.

So, a more accurate statement would be that Pfizer did everything "at your risk." They risk nothing. They get paid whether the shots work or not, and they have zero liability for injuries and deaths, financial or otherwise. The person who takes on all the risk is the one who takes the shot. They could lose their health, their career, everything they own and their very life.

Jansen admits "the mRNA platform wasn't ready for prime time" when they decided to use it, and that there were stability and formulation issues, all of which were literally decided on the fly, often based on little or no data.

To her credit, Jansen stresses that this is "not a model for the future," because "it's not sustainable" to be working at warp speed all the time.

Unfortunately, those who are continuing this work apparently disagree, because warp-speed rollout with minimal or no testing is, in fact, the new norm already.

Warp speed is the new norm

We know warp speed is the new norm because of a decision made by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) this past summer.

During its June 28 Vaccines and Related Biological Products Advisory Committee (VRBPAC) meeting, they approved a bivalent COVID-19 shot for fall.

With that vote, they sneaked in a whole new policy, a new framework, under which reformulated COVID-19 shots will be treated as biologically similar to existing shots and therefore be allowed to skip clinical trials.

During that meeting, they were originally scheduled to vote on the Future Framework policy question of whether reformulated shots should be treated as new molecular entities subject to formal review. They never addressed that policy question and instead skipped right to the vote on a bivalent COVID-19 shot for the fall.

By approving it, knowing there would be no time for testing and data gathering, they replaced the old evidence-based system through a sleight of hand. The bivalent shots received emergency use authorization (EUA) at the end of August, based on the antibody levels in eight mice.

Moderna, which received EUA for its bivalent booster at the same time as Pfizer, also used mice to ascertain antibody responses, but has not disclosed the number of mice used.

So, clearly, we are still moving at warp speed, without regard for risk. And already, vaccine makers are readying to release other mRNA shots, many of which are being fast-tracked and predicted to receive authorization in months rather than years.

Other mRNA approvals expected with little or no data

For example, Moderna is working on a three-in-one shot for COVID-19, flu and RSV (respiratory syncytial virus), and they seem to fully expect releasing it before clinical trials are finished.

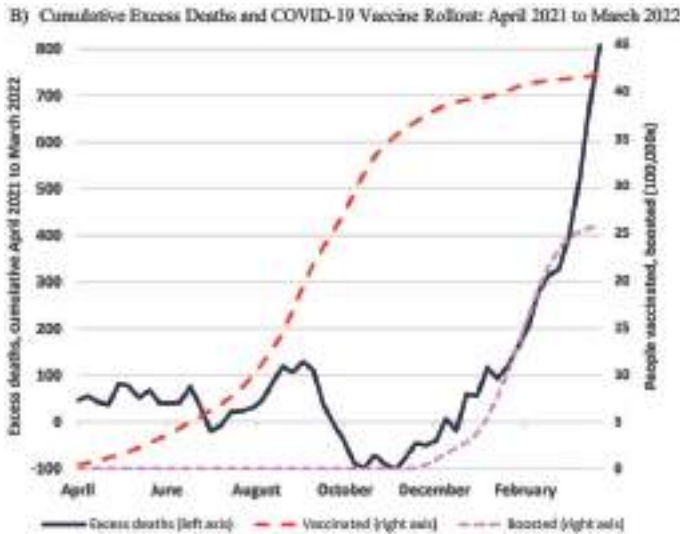

As reported by CBC News

"Moderna is actively promoting a combined COVID-19, flu and RSV vaccine ... But while a safe and effective vaccine would be welcome as Canada faces a surge in pediatric RSV cases, stubbornly high COVID-19 hospitalizations and deaths and steeply rising flu cases, the pharmaceutical company hasn't released data to support the vaccine's safety or efficacy ...

"Moderna's decision to promote its vaccine before completing Phase 3 clinical trials — in which the vaccine would be tested on a larger group as part of a randomized, double-blind study — is controversial. It's also raised concerns from vaccine researchers and infectious diseases experts about the motivations behind prematurely marketing the shot.

"There's still more questions than answers, obviously, with releases like this that come from companies without accompanying data,' said Matthew Miller, a vaccine researcher and associate professor of infectious diseases and immunology at McMaster University.

"I think we need to be really cautious. We have no data on safety, no data on effectiveness or efficacy or age groups. How would you handle updating various components of that vaccine? Lots and lots of questions' ...

"Developing a vaccine for RSV, let alone combining one with COVID-19 and flu, is no small feat — and the complications around dosing, timing and age considerations could pose major challenges for the vaccine maker down the road.

"Having a single formulation increases the complexity of updating that formulation annually,' said Miller ... 'So now, instead of dealing with four flu strains, you're adding in RSV and COVID-19 and having a combined shot might actually be more complex in some ways than having separate formulations that are co-administered at the same time.'"

In addition to fast-tracking mRNA injections for a variety of respiratory viruses, vaccine makers are also loading their pipelines with mRNA shots for diseases such as cancer, multiple sclerosis (MS), birth defects and rarer diseases.

Curiously, while mRNA shots are being hailed as the new and improved answer for every ill, Moderna president Stephen Hoge and chief technical officer Juan Andres cashed out hundreds of millions of their stock options earlier this year which seems odd if everything is going well and no future trouble is expected.

Government and corporate interests have become one

Aiding and abetting the circumvention of the precautionary principle are contract research firms that run medical research trials for drug companies and federal agencies alike, thereby giving the drug companies the inside track on drug approvals.

As noted by investigative journalist Paul Thacker, the COVID-19 pandemic has erased the boundaries between corporate interests and those of our government, and with that, there are few left to trust.

"Talk about foxes guarding the henhouse," Thacker writes. "Or, maybe, one fox raising and caring for the hens, another alerting the farmer when it's time for dinner — and a third setting the farmhouse table for a feast.

He continues: "That is the highly murky and incredibly profitable world of contract research organizations (CROs), private companies that specialize in recruiting patients and running medical research trials.

"In the last handful of years, the [FDA] contracted a CRO to work with the National Institutes of Health to determine how companies run some drug trials; Pfizer hired a CRO to run their COVID-19 vaccine trial; a CRO calmed fears about the safety of AstraZeneca's COVID-19 vaccine after the FDA and NIH raised safety data concerns.

"And just a few weeks back the federal government awarded a CRO a contract to run an anthrax vaccine trial to prepare for a biological attack. And here's the funny thing. All this overlapping and interconnected corporate and government work involves the exact same CRO: ICON."

Thacker contacted the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), asking them to explain "how ICON can run clinical trials for federal agencies while also helping private companies gain federal approval," and "what HHS does to ensure ICON's federal work benefits taxpayers and not their private clients."

After initially getting the runaround he was eventually told to ask ICON to explain their "internal firewalls."

The HHS spokesperson did promise to send Thacker "language HHS puts in contracts to ensure research organizations like ICON protect against conflicts of interest," but he never did. Make of that what you will.

FDA authorized Pfizer jab based on questionable data

Making an already dangerous situation worse, vaccine companies and governments are working overtime to hide and suppress data showing the COVID-19 jabs are a medical disaster and have hidden unfavorable data from the very beginning. The basic data gathering has also been shockingly lax across the world, considering the stakes.

As noted by MIT professor Retsef Levi in The Epoch Times interview below, Pfizer quoted and relied on data from Israel when it sought approval from the FDA, and as it turns out, the Israeli government hid information about side effects.

Even more surprising, Levi claims the Israeli government lied when it said it had a robust system for monitoring and tracking side effects from the start. That surveillance system wasn't launched until a year after the rollout of the shots, Levi says. A research team was eventually hired to analyze the data, and their findings were disconcerting.

Unlike what was told to the public, many of the side effects were both common and long-lasting. The Ministry of Health was advised to think in terms of “medical-legal” when communicating this to the public, as the Ministry might be held liable for telling the public that side effects were rare and of short duration.

In other words, they were informed they'd grossly misinformed the public and could be held accountable for injuries. The Ministry's solution? Fire the research team and alter the report's data and conclusions.

In the interview, Levi explains how some of the data manipulation was done. For example, they massively lowered the number of post-jab menstrual irregularities by counting both women and men. You don't need to be a scientist to realize that by counting men, who cannot menstruate, you end up with a wild misrepresentation of the incidence of menstrual irregularities.

Most egregious of all, the Ministry hid the fact that the research team found clear evidence of causality, as patients, when rechallenged with another dose, would experience a resurgence of symptoms and/or a worsening of symptoms.

Adding insult to injury, even though the Ministry knows exactly who these patients are, they have not reached out to help them medically or compensate them for injuries that have been clearly linked to the shots.

Excess death rates continue to climb

Mortality statistics also reveal we've been sold a sack of lies. In the video below, nurse instructor John Campbell, Ph.D., reviews some of the latest excess death statistics from the U.K., which show that, in October, the average weekly excess death rate was 1,564.

In 2020, the average weekly excess death rate was a mere 315, and in 2021 it was 1,322. For the week ending October 21, the excess mortality was 1,822, which is 15.7% above the five-year average.

So, there are now far more non-COVID-19 deaths than there were COVID-19 deaths during the height of the pandemic before there were any COVID-19 jabs. In particular, data from the King's Fund show excess deaths from cardiovascular disease and diabetes are mounting.

Yet, while the number of people dying was a media obsession during 2020 and 2021, now that the death toll is far greater than what we saw at any point during the pandemic, mainstream media remain quiet, and seem completely uninterested in finding out why people are dying at historically unprecedented rates.

Autumn booster campaigns leave death in its wake

The Daily Sceptic also reported striking parallels between the autumn booster campaign, specifically, and excess deaths in the U.K.

The Daily Sceptic writes

“Potential new support for the role of the vaccines [in excess non-COVID deaths] can be seen in the chart below. I have plotted the autumn vaccine doses in the over-75s (the age group which makes up the large majority of deaths) and excess non-COVID death occurrences (in red), revealing a striking correlation ... COVID death occurrences (in blue), on the other hand, rise and peak several weeks later.

“... [The] Scottish Unity Edinburgh Group sent me this chart showing a similar correlation in Scotland between deaths and the autumn booster rollout.”

New Zealand booster campaign linked to excess deaths

Similarly, an earlier study published on June 28 found that, in New Zealand, the age groups that were most likely to have received a COVID-19 booster in the winter of 2021 had 7% to 10% more excess deaths than age groups that were ineligible for boosters.

The graph below illustrates how the rise in excess mortality coincided with booster uptake.

According to the study's author, economics professor John Gibson:

“The results suggest 16 ... excess deaths per 100,000 booster doses, amounting to over 400 excess deaths in New Zealand given the booster doses administered to date. If this rate of excess deaths is extrapolated to other countries, it amounts to over 300,000 excess deaths worldwide ...

“The ratio of vaccine risk to benefits likely has swung more towards risk than during the original randomized trials, due to dose-dependent adverse events and to fixation of immune responses on a variant no longer circulating.”

I, for one, am not surprised by these kinds of statistics, and I don't think vaccine makers are either. When you take off in an unfinished plane, crashing is to be expected because, in the real world, you cannot build planes in midair.

Likewise, in the real world, you have to do extensive, long-term testing, starting in animals, to be sure a drug is safe. The concept of fast-tracking has been proven a dangerous failure. How long will it take before government and industry admit it?

PASTOR CHRIS: A Man Approved Of GOD By Mighty Works, Wonders And Signs

On November 12, the President of LoveWorld Inc., Chris Oyakhilome, D.Sc. D.D., received yet another honorary Doctorate from the Igbinedion University in Okada, Edo State. In addition to the degree awarded, the Esama of the Benin Kingdom and Chancellor of the University, Chief Gabriel Igbinedion, venerated Pastor Chris at the investiture ceremony by renaming the institution's teaching hospital as the "Pastor Chris Oyakhilome Igbinedion Teaching Hospital, Okada".

The greatness of the man of God, Pastor Chris, is not validated by this honour (distinguished as it is) or any of the other respects bestowed on him, yet it gives a glimpse into the quality of export that Pastor Chris has become from Nigeria to the rest of the world.

Acts 2:22 describes Jesus Christ as "a man approved of God by mighty works, wonders, and signs," a eulogy clearly so important to the man of God, Pastor Chris, that it has become the testimony of his life, fully reflecting Jesus Christ to his generation. As his birthday is celebrated by followers and critics around the world, let us give honour to the living by acknowledging the extraordinary work of God in his life.

A Veteran in the Supernatural

One would have to be living under a rock to be unaccustomed to the extraordinary miracles that have accompanied the healing ministry of Pastor

Chris since its inception. “There’s another miracle over there,” became a household phrase in Nigeria in the mid-90s and early 2000s, but no one could at that time have foreseen the global relevance of his healing ministry today.

There is no single evangelist or healing minister in history with the scale of impact that Pastor Chris’ healing ministry has, especially through the Healing Streams LIVE Healing Services, a quarterly production of LoveWorld Inc., that reaches billions of humans at a time. While some have challenged the possibility of a single event recording such massive attendance, no one can challenge the creative and jaw-dropping miracles that have taken place around the world. Some have postulated that every individual on the face of the earth is no more than two degrees of separation from someone who has received their healing at one of these multi-day global events.

30-year-old Deuel Orok’s unfortunate circumstances became viral news as many, including the Governor of his state in Nigeria, expressed compassion concerning the dramatic erosion of his health. A once vibrant pilot became the victim of a surgical injury resulting in the loss of over 80% of his intestines. In spite of the overwhelming support that got him the best medical care out of the United Arab Emirates, there was not much the doctors could do for Deuel, until the Healing Streams LIVE Healing Service in July 2022. After being ministered to, instantaneously, Deuel began to walk around the hospital, eat and digest food without medical assistance, something the doctors never thought would be possible again. The public and sensational nature of his journey brought the impact of the Healing Streams LIVE Healing Services home to many around the world.

Each Healing Streams edition is followed by 14 days of testimonies and after that, weekends without ceasing with hours of testimonies from all nations of the world, yet the testimonies are never exhausted. According to sources at Christ Embassy Church, a total of 16 people have been raised from the dead through episodes of this power-packed program. If anyone thought the words of Jesus in John 14:12 were figurative in nature, Pastor Chris’ ministry has disproved such an individual and given infallible credence to the expectation of Jesus Christ that those who believe in Him will do much greater works than He did on earth.

Unearthing Conspiracies on a Global Scale

The President and founder of LoveWorld Inc., Reverend (Dr.) Chris Oyakhilome, has risen in prominence over the course of an approximated 40 years in ministry to become an icon of global relevance. In the past three years, however, the healing minister has become arguably the most courageous voice out of the African continent in a saga that many have now dubbed “the COVID-19 debacle”.

Nearly 3 years ago, Pastor Chris began to go against the grain as one making his way uphill in a torrential downpour, against contrary winds of hurricane proportions, when he opposed international bodies such as the World Health Organization and the World Economic Forum at the peak of the most significant global crisis of this century. At first, he was labelled a “conspiracy theorist” by many, asked to stick to preaching and leave science to the “scientists”, with his TV station sanctioned in the United Kingdom. In an unexpected turn of events, whether by coincidence or divine ordinance, every single one of Pastor Chris’ claims about the COVID-19 pandemic has been confirmed to varying degrees.

Pastor Chris announced within the first 3 months of the pandemic that the COVID-19 virus was man-made, an idea that was initially censored by most social media platforms as fake news but a report published as recently as October 2022, by the United States Senate Committee on Health Education,

Labor and Pensions supports this claim. He also predicted a record-breaking, yet false, vaccine development and that the vaccine would be mandated throughout the world, while Anthony Fauci and experts around the world vehemently denied these possibilities. Pastor Chris spoke about the ineffectiveness of the vaccines and their danger to those who would be persuaded by fear to take them. He called out PCR tests to be a fraud and challenged the veracity of data around COVID-19 cases and deaths. Every single one of these postulations, among several others, have been proven to be true in a matter of months or years. Facebook and other social platforms retract their “fake news” flags on accusations of human involvement in the creation of the virus, the vaccine was released in record-time as predicted, even mandated as the Prophet declared. From August 2022 till date, experts have been puzzled by the fact that vaccinated individuals now account for the majority of COVID-19 deaths, and the records of vaccine injuries and deaths continue to climb.

The courage Pastor Chris Oyakhilome of Christ Embassy Church has exhibited has not only been noteworthy; it is sure to be remembered for decades to come especially having come from the African continent. The author and life coach has become a reference point for Presidents and leaders of nations, particularly in Africa, as he charges African nations in particular to beware of the 21st century colonization attempts from Europe.

From NATO's incitement of Russia to war with Ukraine to the global climate change hoax and the despicable actions of big pharma, it appears nothing evades the watchful eyes of the man of God, Pastor Chris. How he knows these things, no one can explain, but it appears the accuracy of his

An Answer to the Cries of Millions

Pastor Chris opened his 12th tuition-free school earlier this year, adding schools in Ewu, Edo State, and Ibeju-Lekki in Lagos State, to a growing list of institutions answering the prayers of indigent families. From India to Nigeria, thousands of parents testify with tears in their eyes of the hope restored to their families when Pastor Chris' InnerCity Mission School enrolled their children, giving them free education with free books and uniforms, while supporting them with two meals a day at no cost.

From the flooding that took place in the southeast part of South Africa in April 2022 to the recent flooding in parts of Southern Nigeria and every other crisis in between, the Chris Oyakhilome Foundation has provided relief to thousands of families. Pastor Chris' humanitarian contributions are not limited to times of obvious distress; in Liberia, his InnerCity Mission graduated thousands of women from free skill and business development programs as part of their Family Support Initiative. Value has been added to thousands of women with no means of livelihood, enabling them to earn or increase their household income.

Every year, Pastor Chris awards thousands of dollars in grants to a diverse group of young African leaders, many of them social entrepreneurs refusing to be deterred by the state of their countries or to abdicate the responsibility for the welfare of their nations to selfish leaders. Through partnership with former President of Nigeria, Olusegun Obasanjo, and other prominent voices from the African continent, the Future Africa Leaders' Foundation provides top-class mentorship to further supplement the financial support provided.

The Most Translated Author in Human History

Rhapsody of Realities or the "Messenger Angel", as it is fondly called, is the first publication to be translated in every single known language on earth, inclusive of the 7,139 officially recognized and over 700 others recently discovered in Oyakhilome's pursuit of fulfilling the scriptures in Matthew 24:14, that "this Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in all the world." The No. 1 daily devotional, first published in January 2001, has become a staple, a companion of religious and non-religious people alike. Through the Messenger Angel, Pastor Chris continues to disciple the whole world, including ministers of the Gospel from other ministries who have found themselves enamoured by the unique teaching ministry of the man of God.

Also dubbed “the Rhapsody of God”, the daily devotional is translated by tens of thousands of individuals, mostly ministers, who are taken by the unique message that Pastor Chris possesses for the nations of the world. These language partners continue to work tirelessly with a global network, the Rhapsody Evangelistic Outreach Network (REON) and REON Youth, to deliver the Gospel according to Pastor Chris to every known nation and territory of the world.

Behold they come from all nations to hear him

Silver Jubilee of Pastor Chris on Television

Since he first took to television with the first broadcast on DBN in the 90s, Pastor Chris' voice has grown in prominence to become recognizable by all races and even languages. The television ministry has been a flagship evangelical bulletin for both Pastor Chris' healing and teaching ministries, saturating nations with God's Word in a way that many had never heard before.

Through his ministry on television, Pastor Chris continues to challenge religious dogma and topple contrary doctrines that had prevented many Christians around the world from fully realizing God's plan as “associates or comrades of the God-kind”. He was one of the first ministers from Nigeria to teach and emphasize the message of the divine life, that a Christian can live a life free of poverty and in success and victory only, in spite of life's challenges. This “prosperity message” has drawn criticism from many Christians and non-believers alike, but the testimonies from the mouths of thousands of his followers seem to prove its authenticity.

Through “Atmosphere for Miracles”, Pastor Chris exposed millions of households to the healing power of Jesus Christ as demonstrated in his own life and ministry. For 25 years, hope and faith have been ignited in the hearts of viewers who have seen the dumb speak, the deaf hear, the lame walk, the blind see, and even the dead raised back to life. Again, criticized by some concerning this, but the testimonies speak for themselves, some so undeniable in their impact that entire communities have borne witness.

“Of his increase shall be no end”

Behold the man approved of God, by mighty works, wonders and signs—Chris Oyakhilome—a notable export of the nation, Nigeria, touching every other nation on earth with an indelible imprint of salvation and grace. As the years progress, there is no telling what more will proceed from LoveWorld Inc. and the man of God, Pastor Chris, but if history serves as a good indicator, one can be sure that, of his increase and the impact of his ministry, there shall be no end. Salute to the most courageous man of the 21st century, a man sent by God, full of faith and good works.

PASTOR CHRIS: A BLESSING TO THE NATIONS

“Every minister worthy of the name has to walk the line between prophetic vision and spiritual sustenance, between telling people the comforting things they want to hear and challenging them with the difficult things they need to hear.”

— Timothy B. Tyson, Blood Done Sign My Name: A True Story

THERE are not many leaders whose trajectory could be said to have found relevance at virtually every difficult time in history as Pastor Chris Oyakhilome, President of Loveworld Nation. It appears that fate always positions him on the front burner of topical issues globally.

In the last one year, he has elected to stand where others are wobbling in addressing the major challenges facing the world in the 21st Century where big corporate organizations are taking over the running of affairs of the world, relegating governments to the background.

Using the media platforms of the Loveworld Networks and beyond, Pastor Chris has been at the forefront of addressing some of the emerging global issues that are literally pushing the world to the brink. Many who have tuned in to his Your Loveworld Specials with Pastor Chris, have been enlightened through his unveiling of some hidden truths in the world. And for this, he has been at the receiving end of targeted attacks by agents of the new global order, and their hirelings, yet, he waxes even greater.

Furthermore, he has been at the forefront of getting the Church to stay true to its mission and not getting caught napping during this end-time. He has continuously prophesied about the global cycle and why the world is living in a very auspicious time as the end of the Church Age is at hand; a stand that has equally drawn the ire of not only some Christians but also non-Christians; but even at that, he is not deterred. As Christopher Hitchens once opined: “We can always be sure of one thing—that the messengers of discomfort and sacrifice will be stoned and pelted by those who wish to preserve at all costs their own contentment. This is not a lesson that is confined to the Testaments.”

Pastor Chris' teachings in recent times, and even as before now, have sought to inform the Church about the game plans of the globalists from the manipulative strategies of using the COVID-19 as excuses to using media propaganda and disinformation to project their hidden agendas. He has deployed enlightening documentaries to expose the cunning deceptions enshrined in symbolisms, the fraud of climate change and 'a possible vaccine holocaust' among several global happenings.

Pastor Chris has helped the Church to be abreast of the hidden truths including the knowledge that God's saints are custodians of His righteousness, truth, and peace. He thus admonished God's people to take advantage of their God-given rights and proclaim God's peace all around them, even as the world is inundated with disturbing news on daily basis.

All that people see today especially about the reach and influence of Pastor Chris and his ministry continues to astound, causing many to testify like they did concerning Jesus that “no man could do these miracles, ...except God be with him.” With each passing day, Pastor Chris solidifies his place as a true icon of Christ, a walking manifestation of the credentials and accurate definition of “Man of God” itemized in the scriptures, revered for his approach to Christian ministry, and a blessing to the nations.

REACHING THE WORLD, ONE LANGUAGE AT A

TIME

While every aspect of the Ministry of Pastor Chris Oyakhilome is remarkable and impactful because there is nothing he has put his mind to do that never excelled, some however have carried the message farther and wider than any other. They could be likened to the proverbial smoke that delivered the message sent through it as an emissary to the heavenly.

When Pastor Chris launched the Rhapsody of Realities daily devotional 22 years ago, he knew it would reach every end and cranny of this world, but many who heard him say so, did not believe such was achievable. But today, the Rhapsody of Realities daily devotional is in every language known to man at 7858 languages, and still counting with several billions of copies in circulation. This was announced by Pastor Chris during the December 2022 Communion Service. The testimonial aspect of this is that there is no other book on earth, or any organization in the world that has achieved such feat before now.

Ordinarily, this development should be of interest to global leadership, especially the United Nations which has been lamenting about how languages are going extinct not only because they lack native speakers, but also because of the absence of reading materials in such languages. The United Nations through UNESCO recently decried that the world is losing loads of native knowledge, history, cultures, and traditions because the languages that should be their vehicles are going extinct.

According to UNESCO, of the over 7,151 languages spoken globally as at today, roughly 40
